

The State Of Things As They Actually Exist

By James Dye

A tree falls and if you don't believe me it still exists
being nothingness

formless forms illusions extensions of delusions fool the eye paintings fool the guy painting

a qualia only for you believe what you want to be true have others around you agree see what you want to see

In a socially constructed reality with reality enforcement truths are not the truth it's taken in our youth The world is not everything that's a fact accordingly

A universe expanding radiation surrounding debunked in the future or later changed by nature assimilate the knowledge hypothesize in college predict the consequence a bunch of nonsense review the mistake

they make existence fake
